Nominations Sought for New NFCCA 'Good Neighbor' Award

By Laura Hussey

The NFCCA Board is seeking nominations for a new Good Neighbor Award, to be bestowed by NFCCA annually to a neighborhood resident who has done something exemplary to make our neighborhood a better place to live, including, but not limited to, actions such as volunteer service on behalf of the neighborhood in local or county forums; simple neighborly acts of kindness such as looking in on a neighbor in need of assistance; or taking responsibility for something that benefits other neighbors, such as picking up trash in the park or along the street. The winner of the first annual NFCCA Good Neighbor Award will be named at the NFCCA meeting on 14 June 2017.

To submit a nomination, send an email to hero@nfcca.org with the individual's name, address (or street), and a description of the actions that you feel make the individual a "good neighbor."

Nominees must be current residents of the neighborhood bounded by Colesville Road, University Boulevard, Caddington Avenue/Loxford Terrace, and the Northwest Branch stream valley park (see our territory map online at www.nfcca.org/area.html). Nominations for the 2017 NFCCA Good Neighbor Award must be submitted no later than 15 May 2017. The NFCCA Board will determine the winner.

If you have questions or suggestions about this award, please send an email to the hero@nfcca.org address. ■

Next Meeting on February Eighth

The next meeting of the Northwood-Four Corners Civic Association will be held on Wednesday, 8 February 2017, at 7:30 p.m. at Forest Knolls Elementary School. The school is located at 10830 Eastwood Avenue, just off Caddington Avenue (there's no access from other sections of Eastwood). You can enter the All-Purpose Room directly from the parking lot.

Finding yourself drowning in clutter? Come hear Fiona Morrissey speak on how to get out from under our messes and simplify our lives.

All residents of the Northwood-Four Corners-Forest Knolls area are invited to attend and express their views. Please note that only paid members of the NFCCA are eligible to vote. (Annual dues are $10 per household and may be paid at the meeting.)■

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Happy New Year, neighbors. The election's history—in more ways than anyone could have imagined—and the holidays are over. We're on the upward swing in the calendar towards spring and, as presidents are fond of saying this time of year, the state of our union, er, neighborhood, is strong. Our neighborhood association has money in the bank, a core group of dedicated volunteers, and the best newsletter in Montgomery County.

Ever since Northwood Park was platted and the first homes built in 1936, our neighborhood has had civic organizations devoted to building community and advocating on our behalf with county leaders. That's 80 years of community engagement that has been passed from one generation to the next. The newest leaders, yours truly included, always benefit from our predecessors whose indefatigable work has left its mark. I was reminded of this around Thanksgiving when we learned that longtime activist Jim Zepp suffered a debilitating stroke.

Jim is in rehabilitation now and folks from across the neighborhood have been visiting him and supporting Jim's wife, Carole Barth, with meals for him. NFCCA board member Kevin Harris created an online tool to register volunteers to help. It's people like Jim, Carole, and Kevin who remind me why I love this neighborhood. At the December membership meeting, several cards were passed around for Jim and folks were able to send their wishes for a quick and full recovery. I would like to underscore that sentiment here: Get well soon, Jim.

Also at the December meeting we heard from Councilmember Tom Hucker. Again, we gave him an earful about the lack of progress in resurfacing our roads and he assured us, again, that our roads will be fully rehabilitated in the 2017 construction season. I hope so. It's a promise that we've heard far too many times only to learn that it's as sound as the crumbling asphalt in front of our homes. I'm not reassured by the lack of progress made before winter forced the county's contractor to pack up for the season but I am still willing to give Councilmember Hucker and the DOT staff the benefit of the doubt. Stay tuned; construction season begins soon.

Speaking of winter, even though we've had some really warm days recently—70 degrees the second week in January—there's still lots of time for us get another Snowzilla-Icemedaggon or whatever the name du jour will be. In the last newsletter we announced the start of a Snow Angels program. It pairs willing snow shovelers with elderly residents who might need help when the big one falls.

Sidewalks that haven't been shoveled are dangerous and they're much more than a simple inconvenience. Obstructed and icy sidewalks make it difficult for folks with mobility issues—the elderly and people who must use walkers and canes—and they make it unsafe for children walking to school or to bus stops. Plus, it's the law: Montgomery County code requires all sidewalks to be cleared within 24 hours after the end of a precipitation event.

No one is exempt: homeowners, renters, and businesses. Homeowners can be fined $50; an amendment to the law last year created higher penalties for businesses, up to $750 for repeat offenses. To report un-shoveled sidewalks, call 311 or 240.777.0311.

Finally, if you're reading this newsletter, then you're engaging with your neighbors and your neighborhood association. This newsletter is delivered to almost 1,500 homes in our neighborhood. But there's a lot more to NFCCA than what you read here or online. Wouldn't it be great to find out what some of us who write these articles look like? Or, better yet, discussing some of the subjects you read about here with the county officials we entrust with our tax dollars? Contrary to neighborhood folklore, our meetings are much more than flogging sessions for the latest Montgomery County public enemy.

Why not take the next step and come to the next NFCCA meeting? Introduce yourself, have a snack, maybe win a prize, and help keep our organization relevant and one of the unadvertised amenities you get when you move to the neighborhood. Just like spring, the next generation of community leaders is just around the corner. All we need to do is meet you.

VI. The Lessons

1. The community must coalesce on a vision and its master plan adhere to that vision, yet be ever nimble when opportunity comes calling.
2. Through governmental administration after administration after administration, never waver from the plan’s vision and creative multifront implementation.
3. There is no silver bullet for success, only dozens of bullets of every description and caliber.
4. Public investments and incentives are necessary to leverage greater private investments and achieve a healthier tax base.
5. Mix the old with the new, mix the uses, mix private with public facilities, mix transportation options, stir and shake, and watch the people come.
6. None of the above is politically sustainable with-

Students Offering Skills, Services To Be Listed in Next Newsletter

By Sharon Canavan

The flyer on the back page of this newsletter describes the Snow Angels program for volunteers to shovel snow for our neighbors in the community who need assistance with this task.

NFCCA also wants to give students who would like to earn some extra money an opportunity to list their contact information in the newsletter. Any student with skills—such as tutoring or babysitting, or who would like to provide help with gardening, lawn care, snow removal, leaf raking, pet sitting or walking, or other household help (for pay)—should send their contact information and a description of their skill or service to editor@nfcca.org. It is suggested that any teen interested in being listed set up a separate email from their usual one (that can be deleted in a year or two) as the newsletter also appears online.

The April edition of the News will include a section for “Students Offering Skills and Services,” which will be periodically updated and included on the website. (Note: The June issue will focus on home improvement and include a directory of service providers; there will be a small fee for inclusion. See the April issue for details.) ■

Maryland Keeps Track of All of Its 'Big Trees'

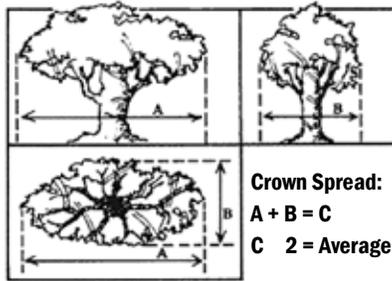

By Jacquie Bokow

Maryland's first State Forester, Fred Besley, compiled the initial "Noted Tree List" in 1925. As the list grew into a permanent, published record, Besley started an intensive search for big trees of all species growing in Maryland. A statewide contest was held, greatly increasing the number of nominations for Big Tree Champions. The search continues to the present time and the list changes constantly.

Although "The Big Tree Champions of Maryland" was published from 1937 to 2002, it is now compiled electronically and updated as a new champion or new species is identified. You can search the list yourself online at www.mdbigtrees.com. There are currently 1,531 trees in the registry for Mont. County.

Due to the size of the database, limits have been established as to the size of trees that can be registered. There are three criteria: (1) trees must be at least 300 points, or (2) trees must be at least 70 percent of the current State Champion (largest of that species in the state), or (3) trees must be a county champion (largest in the county).

To evaluate the relative size of a tree, the girth (circumference) in inches and the height and crown spread in feet are added together to arrive at a number of points for each tree. This number is then used for comparison of tree sizes in each species. This system of measuring gives the trunk much better weight by giving the girth in inches. The formula is: Total Points = Circumference (inches) + Height (feet) + 25% of the Average Crown Spread (feet, see diagram above).

I'd never heard of Maryland's Big Tree Program until one of my sisters had a tree of hers registered. She lives in Prince George's County and her Northern Pecan (see photo below) has 263 points.

Joli McCathran, Montgomery County Big Tree Co-

*My sister's northern pecan tree (Carya illinoensis), with a height of 92 feet, a spread of 89 feet, and a circumference of 149 inches, has 263 points. She lives in a 105-year-old house in Fort Washington, in Prince George's County.*

ordinator, measured all of the large trees in North Four Corners Park and two trees there have been added to the Maryland Big Tree database (only the largest known ones appear on the online list). First, of course, is the black walnut (Juglans nigra, 255 points) overhanging the new soccer field. But she was even more excited to find an "impressive" oak chestnut (Quercus montana, 257 points) near the rec center.

"The chestnut oak is the highest-pointing tree in the park," said McCathran. "It is located behind the building parking lot in the east corner of the property. There are two others [chestnut oaks] in Montgomery County which have more points. The state champion (in Anne Arundel County) is 406 points."

No Reward Except Fame

The registration of a big tree confers no protection or restriction upon the property and its owner. There are no funds available to prune, mulch, cable, and otherwise promote the healthy growth and longevity of Maryland Big Trees.

On the other hand, the owner of a registered Big Tree retains all property rights of that tree, including the right to remove it at any time for any reason. Once a tree is measured and registered, it is assigned a number which it will carry forever (deceased trees retain their registered number and are listed in an electronic "deceased" file). The owner is mailed a certificate of registration, a letter of congratulations, a list of all the registered trees in Maryland of that species, a county-specific brochure explaining the program, and a bumper sticker proclaiming “Proud Owner of a Maryland Big Tree.”

The rules for measuring trees have evolved over the years. Volunteers from the Maryland Big Tree Program and local forestry board members are trained to follow

North Four Corner Park's oak chestnut tree (Quercus montana, 257 points) near the rec center, surrounded by invasive plant material—English and poison ivy—is the tallest chestnut oak registered in Md. these rules; therefore, they recommend allowing their volunteers to perform the tree measurements. They also require written permission from the tree's owner in order to measure and register a tree. Citizens are encouraged to nominate trees in their communities. They must be given the owner's name and contact information before they can drive to a location to measure as they will not investigate the ownership of a property. Trees on public property usually can be measured and registered without written permission, although it is helpful to first check with the public agency in case the property is slated for a project that would affect that tree.

Only trees native to the U.S. are counted in the registry and the trees are re-measured every 10 years once they are registered. “Bicentennial Trees” are those identified as being alive in 1776.

Since the death of Talbot County's Wye Oak in 2002 (still the largest tree ever measured in Maryland), the largest tree in the state is in Mont. County: an American Sycamore (Platanus Occidentalis) in Dickerson Conservation Park. It has 475 points.

“There are many reasons why the program started and continues to this day,” said John Bennett, Volunteer Coordinator for the Maryland Big Tree Program. “First, it serves to reward those owners who care for their big trees. About 90 percent of our registered trees are ‘backyard trees,’ as opposed to forest-grown trees. Trees grown in backyards tend to have less competition and receive more nutrients and water from the owners (lawn fertilizers often benefit the trees more than the lawn).

“Second, the program provides a reference for scientific studies. From time to time, I am contacted by researchers who are studying a particular species and need to know where the big examples are located. Third, the program provides a record over time of changes to species distribution. Thirty years ago, one would not find examples of Southern magnolias and crape myrtles in northern Maryland; today they are very common. The program helps to document these changes. Finally, the program provides locations of rare and unusual species for those who wish to improve their knowledge and identification skills.”

The Mont. Co. Forestry Board will be issuing the 2017-2018 Register of Champion Trees in April. For information on how to register a big tree, contact John Bennett at mdbigtreeprogram@aol.com or call 410.287.5980. ■

Angels

This program offers seniors and those with disabilities a helping hand to clear out walkways and driveways after a major snow event. We will match eligible seniors and persons with disabilities with a volunteer who will take on the job of shoveling a clear driveway or walkway after a snowstorm.

Please email: snowangel@nfcca.org if you would like to be matched!

Volunteers needed!
